RO Rob Candelino

RO If you put me beside another Unilever person who's been here the same amount of time in the same type of role, we, we would not look like we work for the same company. We would not look like the same type of people. But if you peel back the onion a little bit, I think there's a heartbeat inside of both of us that is pretty consistent because at the end of the day we're both working for the same objective with the same values and based on the same principles.
